Art Unit: 1636

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 46-73 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-9, 11-13 and 16 of U.S. Patent No. 6,797,702, as follows: instant claims 46, 69-71 and 73 over patented claim 1; instant claims 47-52 over patented claim 2; instant claims 53, 54, 58 and 65-68 over patented claims 3, 4, 7, 11-13 and 16, respectively; instant claims 55 and 56 over patented claim 5; instant claims 57 and 72 over patented claim 6; instant claims 59-62 over patented claim 8; and instant claims 63 and 64 over patented claim 9. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because an obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but an examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). The MPEP states, at §804, that

[t]he specification can always be used as a dictionary to learn the meaning of a term in the patent claim. In re Boylan, 392 F.2d 1017, 157 USPQ 370 (CCPA 1968). Further, those portions of the specification which provide support for the patent claims may also be examined and considered when addressing the issue of whether a claim in the application defines an obvious variation of an invention claimed in the patent. In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 441-42, 164 USPQ 619, 622 (CCPA 1970). The court in Vogel recognized "that it is most difficult, if not meaningless, to try to say what is or is not an obvious variation of a claim," but that one can judge whether or not the invention claimed in an application is an obvious variation of an embodiment disclosed in the patent which provides support for the patent claim. According to the court, one must first "determine how much of the patent disclosure pertains to the invention claimed in the patent" because only "[t]his portion of the specification supports the patent claims and may be considered." The court pointed out that "this use of the disclosure is not in contravention of the cases forbidding its use as prior art, nor is it applying the patent as a reference under 35 U.S.C. 103, since only the disclosure of the invention claimed in the patent may be examined."

The instant claim in each instance is more narrowly drawn than the patented claim. However, the portion of US Patent 6,797,702 that supports each of claims 1-9, 11-13 and 16 includes each of the narrower limitations of the instant claims in the definition of the invention. Each of the instant claims is limited to killing benign cells. Claim 1 of the patent is broadly drawn to tumor cells. It is evident from patented claim 20, however, which depends from 1, and specifies malignant cells, that benign cells must be included in claim 1, as tumor cells which are not part of the narrower scope of malignant cells must logically be non-malignant, i.e., benign. The portion of the specification of the patent which defines the cell types which may be killed by the invention, and which thus supports patented claim 1, e.g., at the paragraph bridging columns 3 and 4, discloses that both malignant and benign cells may be killed. As such, the inventions of the instant claims and of the cited patented claims are not patentably distinct.
